

SWEEPING SUCCESS OF THE GERMAN DRIVE THROUGH HOLLAND, BELGIUM CLAIMED BY NAZIS; LIEGE CITADEL IS CAPTURED

German High Command Flares in Anger Over The French Announcement of Death Sentences to Captive German Parachute Troops, Found Wearing Any But Own National Uniforms — British and French Reinforcements Bolster Allies' Forces.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN, May 13 — Sweeping success in the German drive through Holland and Belgium was claimed today by the Nazi high command, which officially announced capture of the citadel of Liege.

This followed surrender of the Eben Emael fortress at Liege, Saturday, following a lightning attack with Germany's new mysterious weapon which it is said "demobilizes" enemy fortifications, with German forces deep in Belgian territory.

The capture of the Liege citadel clears the way for a major assault on Belgian interior defense lines. While the Nazi objectives were shrouded in secrecy, it was announced that a drive on Brussels was in the making.

Meanwhile, the German high command flared in anger over the public announcement of Premier Reynaud of France that death sentences would be meted out to captive German parachute troops, if they were found to be wearing any but their own national uniforms.

An official announcement said that the government had sent formal notes to Brussels, the Hague, Paris and London, warning of the severest retaliations against any irregular proceedings against German parachute troops.

BRUSSELS, May 13—Bolstered by strong British and French reinforcements, Belgian and Dutch troops in the Ardennes-Leige-Masstrick areas clashed with mechanized German forces in a major battle beginning today while the Nazi air forces resumed its bombing of the invaded territories.

Allied forces, arriving in steadily increasing numbers, fought beside the Belgians, who stood to halt the Nazi rush through Belgian defenses.

Latest word from the battle front said the German attack on Belgian forts at Liege and Namur were holding out despite intensive bombardments with the Allies now disputing German air supremacy, German tanks and mechanized columns were reported held up at Tongres and Waremme.

British, French and Belgian planes constantly attacked the German columns which pressed a fighting, driving push from Liege to Waremme, 13 miles northwest of the former city.

A wave of fresh confidence inspired all of Belgium today Premier Pierlot, in a radio broadcast, gave a resume of the military situation, claiming it was not nearly as dangerous as had been supposed.

The Germans, it was indicated, are still 50 miles from Brussels. Brussels and vicinity were attacked from the air again today.

LONDON, May 13—Crown Princess Juliana of Holland and her husband, Prince Bernhard, arrived in London today accompanied by their two children. It was stated that the Prince will return to Holland as aide-de-camp to Queen Wilhelmina.

LONDON, May 13—British war planes attacked enemy concentrations in Germany near the Rhine River, during the night, the Air Ministry stated today.

The Royal Air force claimed heavy bombing of German troops advancing through Eastern Belgium, the announcement said.

BUCHAREST, May 13—Joseph Beck, former foreign minister of Poland, who fled to Rumania when his country was occupied by Germany, was under arrest today, charged with attempting to leave Rumania with a false passport.

WITH THE EXPEDITIONARY FORCES IN BELGIUM, May 13—A desperate battle on the largest scale since the World War upon which the fate of Europe rests, raged today on the Eastern front of Belgium.

British and French forces threw their full strength into an attempt to halt the mechanized German hordes pouring through a gap smashed in the Belgian resistance.

Hammered by the greatest artillery concentration since American troops began the final drive on the western front in the fall of 1918, the subject of the intensive bombardments from the air, the Belgian army fought steadily while withdrawing to prepared positions on the frontier.

The allied forces standing in the main path of the German advance by now probably have come to grips and the outcome is in the balance.

LONDON, May 13—The British government have no intention of intervening in the Netherlands East Indies, it was stated authoritatively today.

Milk Wagon Cut in Half

Philadelphia, May 13—An alleged drunken driver, speeding at 60 miles an hour, collided with a milk wagon in North Philadelphia today, cutting the vehicle in half and injuring the driver. The horse was not injured.

Arrested, as operator of the automobile was Joseph Bilunas, 26, a chauffeur.

To Arrest 30 More in Murder-for-Insurance Ring

PHILADELPHIA, May 13—(INS)—Arrest of 30 new suspects in Philadelphia's notorious murder-for-insurance ring reportedly neared today as Joseph Swartz faced retrial as one of the last of 23 original defendants to be brought to justice.

Swartz, who pleaded guilty to the poison slaying of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lena Winkelman, was recently released from Philadelphia General Hospital. His "mental behavior" had led to an interruption of his juryless trial.

The alleged new suspects and purported uncovering of a new series of slayings stemmed from questioning of arsenic defendants. Arson was being investigated as another possible source of the ring's income, it was reported.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

The Fate of Neutrality

Washington, May 11.

WITH THE indecent and ruthless Nazi smash into Holland and Belgium, the utter folly and futility of being neutral in this war ought to be apparent to the remaining neutral nations in Europe. Obviously, to be neutral is to invite attack.

NO more evidence, it seems, should be needed. Witnessing the fate of Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium, it is impossible to escape the conviction that neutrality is no protection against the German aggressor. Neutrality simply means waiting your turn to be knocked off. The neutral nations have been—and are—neutral from sheer fear of the Nazis. They hope for an Allied victory because by no other result can their future integrity and independence possibly be assured. An Allied defeat means that the small neutrals of Europe will be dominated and dictated to by a conquering Germany; that national and individual freedom will disappear and neither their property, their lives nor their liberties be secure.

OF all this the neutral nations of Europe were aware long before the war started. They saw what happened to Austria and Czechoslovakia. Since the war began they have seen neutral, peace-loving nations which have kept out of war for hundreds of years—nations minding their own business and anxious to avoid friction—crushed, conquered, invaded, raped, and now living under the German heel, which well they know will never be removed from their necks until and unless the German power is broken.

THEY are—these neutral nations book. They were members of the class of 1936 of Springfield High School.

Their brother, Robert, is also a member of this year's graduating class at State College. He is completing the agriculture course.

A resident of Sellersville, Uriah F. Sollday, one of the oldest employes of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, celebrated his 77th birthday anniversary this week. Although having expected to retire from actual work this week, Mr. Sollday retired earlier than he had planned, giving up his duties on April 30th.

He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel Sollday and was born in Bedminster township, and lived there until he reached manhood. He left home and became employed as a helper in the mill of the Derstine brothers, a few miles down the Branch valley. He was employed there for 19 years and then joined the Inland Traction Company, Sellersville, where he was a mechanic.

He marked his 37th anniversary as an employe of the utility company March 1st.

Mr. Sollday and Hannah Strouse, of Hilltown, were married April 25, 1885 by the late Rev. J. L. Becker, Sellersville. They recently celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary.

The couple have four children, Mrs. David Carter, Carney's Point, N. J.; Mrs. Frank Weik, Bristol; Uriah, Jr., North Wales, and William, Allentown.

Mr. Sollday was an operator at the power house in Sellersville where he has worked for the past 37 years.

The annual boys' night meeting of the Perkasio Fish and Game Association took place this week in Fraternity Temple, Perkasio. Two hundred and fifty boys were guests, and the total attendance was about 500.

Harry S. Cole, fish warden for Bucks and Montgomery Counties, who addressed the gathering, suggested that a course in conservation be added to the high school curriculums in Pennsylvania. He pointed out that the conservationists will create instead of destroy; produce instead of consume; and protect wild life as well as trees and plant life.

He made a strong appeal to the boys to protect birds, especially of the song and insectivorous variety.

GIRL SCOUTS ENTERTAIN MOTHERS AT A BANQUET

65 Have Enjoyable Evening About Festive Board At S. Langhorne, Saturday

AWARDS A HIGH-LIGHT

SOUTH LANGHORNE, May 13—South Langhorne Girl Scouts entertained their mothers at a mother and daughter banquet, Saturday evening, at Flannery's restaurant. About 65 were present at this affair, which marked the 13th anniversary of the troop.

The program was in charge of the leader, Miss Dorothy Knox. Songs were sung during the evening, and greetings extended by some of the guests, including: Miss Emily Hodge, assistant director of Philadelphia Scouts; Mrs. Cuthall, a member of the group organization committee of District 7; Miss Marie Pederson, Bucks County Lone Troop consultant; Miss Nellie E. Main, former leader of the troop; and Mrs. Warren Bilger, Sr., who was greatly responsible for starting the troop in 1927.

An inspiring message was given by Mrs. Reba Miller, Philadelphia.

We Still Have Many

(By "The Stroller")
Yes, siree! We still have a lot of "pet peeves" sticking in our "craw." Those peeves are the ones which are ever with us, and which always will be with us unless Bristol residents wake up and do something about them—the trash dumps which are a blot on our fair city.

Do you have a trash dump on your property?
Is there any trash on vacant lots or on thoroughfares near your home?

Could you stretch a point, and eradicate that dump, and win the commendation of your fellow-citizens, and also win for the town the admiration of the traveling public? Why not every one who can do a little bit, get busy?

SLOW, BUT USEFUL

With every nation striving to produce bigger and faster planes for military use the advantages of slower, smaller planes have been overlooked by the general public. Major Al Williams, who writes aviation news for chain papers, calls attention to them and gives an interesting description of the uses to which the slow-landing plane can be put.

While in Germany, he examined the Storch which had replaced the autogiro in the esteem of the German military group. The Storch, which has been shown in this country, takes off with a ground run of 50 feet and can land with a roll of less than 20 feet. It has wing-slots and flaps which reduce its landing speed to 25 or 30 miles an hour. These qualities make it particularly useful in testing out emergency landing fields in captured territory.

Major Williams says these small planes were used by the Germans in the Polish campaign and were extremely useful in establishing new air bases. They are completely worthless as fighting ships but invaluable in the work of discovering and preparing safe bases for the larger planes.

It is Major Williams' contention that "the nation that first masters the art of flying slowly will rule the air." It may be argued that in purely defensive action there is no place for a plane like the Storch. But in offensive action, where quick advances are being made into enemy territory, there is much to be said for the plane which can reconnoiter new territory safely. The Germans have apparently given study to the paradoxical advantages of slow-flying in a split-second war.

To people not wholly preoccupied by the war, however, it is the peacetime uses to which the slow plane may be put that are interesting, for it means that the safety factor introduced by the autogiro in private flying will be still further increased.

STRAWBERRY SEASON

In a sense the strawberry season is a thing of the past, which is unfortunate. In other days there was no more delightful form of mental relaxation during the long winter months than contemplation of the infinite delights attendant upon the season—the strawberry festival with its pleasant social contacts, the strawberry jam, the strawberry and cream and, above all else, the strawberry shortcake, with the berries bursting with sweetness and the juice oozing out over the biscuit.

But now, unhappily, the age of anticipation has been dulled. Through the progress of science, the marvels of swift transportation and the infinite climatic resources of this great land, strawberries are available all the year round and the season is no longer anticipated with emotions of delight. There are, however, strawberries and strawberries. Shipments have been coming from Florida all winter.

But in every section of the country, strawberries are at their best when the home-grown crop is available. Strawberries are always best when consumed on the day they leave the plant.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Sept. 12, 1878. The Gazette, weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The members of Hopkins Lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F., intend visiting the dedication of the hall in Yardleyville, on Saturday next, in a body. They have engaged a band of music, and will leave Bristol about 11 o'clock.

Upon a freight train, which reached here Friday night from the East, came Arthur Papke, of Newark, N. J., who got aboard the train, and his presence not being discovered by the conductor he had a free ride as far as Bristol where he got off until the train started again, when he attempted to jump on, and fell with his foot under the wheels, mashing it so badly that he was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital, for treatment, and will doubtless have to undergo the amputation of the injured member.

Mrs. Mary Young, who lives near Eddington, is often compelled to remain at home alone, as the business of her husband makes it impossible for him to get home every night. Last Thursday was one of these occasions. Before going away though, in the morning, her son loaded a horse pistol and left it for her defence if she should need it. About 11 o'clock, after she had retired, but had not fallen asleep, she heard a suspicious noise, and taking the pistol went to the window, which was raised, and looking out through the bowed shutters, saw a wagon near the house and three men. Two of them were at the door, one of them boring a hole in the door, while the third had just left and was going towards the wagon, doubtless to get some other tools. Mrs. Young could look right down on the party from the window, and pointing the pistol at the face of the fellow who was boring she shot it off just as he, for some reason, looked up. The shot was effective, for the man fell over, and his partners seized him and put him in the wagon and drove off, swearing at Mrs. Young for shooting. The neighbors were soon alarmed, and tracked the wagon to the new road, leading along the river, where all traces of it were lost. All around the place where the man was standing when he was shot, blood was found in large spots, indicating that he had bled very much, and in all probability was wounded fatally. The affair naturally created a great excitement, and Mrs. Young deserves praise for her brave and prompt action in frustrating the designs of the daring burglars.

At court at Doylestown, on Monday, exceptions were filed to the report of the Commissioners dividing our borough into wards, and the matter will be finally decided at adjourned court in October.

A good lot of ice of a fair quality was secured from the canal basin yesterday, the first of the season. It belonged to Lewis Patterson, and was shipped from Philadelphia in a canal boat.

Rev. William Hance, missionary, will preach to the boatmen at the canal basin, on Sunday next, at four o'clock p. m.

Tramps begging, have substituted old clothes for food, preparing for the winter.

Snipe shooting on Johns' pond, caused much merriment last Monday.

Tramp's Retreat is the new name given to Otter Creek.

The first ferry boat between Bristol and Burlington was in 1743.

Mr. Shaw, furniture dealer on Mill street, has placed in front of his store a glass globe for the reception of contributions for the yellow fever sufferers of the South.

The members of the Grand Army Post have raised $25 in response to the calls for aid by their comrades located in the various cities in the Southern states, and hope to be able to increase the funds very considerably.

It troubles the man who has to go to Doylestown as a witness, to find out how to pay expenses when he has to pay two dollars a day for board, and only receives one dollar a day witness fees.

—caught between two of the great belligerents, one of whom respects their rights and the other disregards and tramples upon them, giving reasons so clearly false as to insult the intelligence. Again and again the armed invasion has come, without warning, but always followed by the lying claim that the German onslaught was forced to forestall similar action planned by the Allies or because the innocent neutral nation was not really neutral. Clearly, the neutrals have been pursuing a tragically mistaken policy. Clearly, their self-interest would have been infinitely better served had they immediately cast in their lots with the Allies, and early taken steps to avail themselves of the Allied strength, instead of supinely sitting on the fence until the German war machine ran over them.

—After the blow has fallen, then, it is true, they call for Allied aid; but then the Allies, respecters of neutral rights, are at a disadvantage. The enemy got there first and is in possession. Had Holland and Belgium early linked themselves with the Allies, they probably could have been saved from invasion and their beautiful cities from the destruction that now threatens. By these months of rigid and meticulous neutrality they not only may have wrought their own destruction but damaged the Allied cause.

—IT is no more worth while to stress the mistake of such neutrality now and point out that any other course would have been less disastrous than it is to dwell upon the alleged British incompetence or stupidity in Norway or the terrific difficulties of baiting an already entrenched foe. The main point now is whether the rest of these neutral European nations, with the fate of neutrality staring them straight in the face, will remain neutral, thereby contributing to a German victory and insuring their own despoliation, or whether the inescapable lesson of the last few weeks of the war will stimulate them to enlightened action.

—THERE is also the question of what will be the effect of what has happened to these neutral nations—Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium—upon us, the great, fat neutral of the Western World. One effect may be to stir Congress to larger appropriations for national defense before this session ends and lend greater force to the words of General Pershing, Mr. B. M. Baruch, Secretary Edison and others who have been pointing out the feebleness of our army and questioning the effectiveness of our navy for a good many months.

—AS for the effect upon popular sentiment, there are two views. One is that the desire to help the Allies in every way "short of war" will be enhanced; that it will induce us to cast aside our pretense of neutrality and make available for the side with which we so deeply sympathize everything we have—except an expeditionary force. The other view is that instead of increasing our desire to go in it will strengthen the determination to stay out. Secure in the belief that what has happened to the neutrals of Europe cannot happen to us, the hotter the war, the greater the reason for staying out. The chief reasons for feeling that the latter view is apt to prevail are that this is election year; that the two conventions come in June and July; that the campaign will continue until November. No human being can tell what the situation will be then.

HULMEVILLE

Mrs. Warren Bilger, Sr., South Langhorne, was highest scorer in games of pinocle at the card party conducted by the Auxiliary in Grace Church parish house, Friday evening. The affair was a benefit for the Sunday School picnic fund. Eight tables were required for the players. The prize committee included Mrs. Stanley Buckman and Mrs. Lewis Barton, Hulmeville; refreshment committee, Mrs. Ray Barber and Mrs. William Walsh, Parkland. Approximately $18 was cleared. Booklets were presented by the Rev. Wilmer E. Harkness to the oldest mother in attendance, and the mother of the youngest baby present, at the morning service in Neshaunim Methodist Church, yesterday. Mrs. Helen Ilick was the oldest mother, and Mrs. Alvin Simmers, Dolington, was the mother of the youngest child. A choir composed of mothers gave two special numbers; and other mothers participated in the service. Special decorations were dogwood blossoms, and baskets of cut flowers, many of the baskets being in honor of deceased mothers. During Sunday School session, special numbers were: Vocal solo, "Memories," Mrs. Harold Dassenburg; cornet solo, "My Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me," Kimbel Fawcett; organ, Mrs. John Browning, Miss Ethel Wheeler and Russell Brown.

YARDLEY

Mrs. Sarah Deck, California, is spending some time as the guest of Mrs. Helen M. C. Barnes. On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Barnes entertained a number of her friends at a tea complementing Mrs. Deck.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Eggleston entertained at their home in honor of the seventh birthday anniversary of their daughter Evelyn. The guests were: Eleanor Masig, Judy Leedom, Carol Briggs, Alfrida Szolack, Isabel Grundy, Selma Leedom, Jane Coulton, Marion Stackhouse, Jesse Eggleston and Joan Eggleston.

The Rev. and Mrs. Elwell Lake have returned home after spending several days in Atlantic City, N. J., where they attended sessions of the general conference of the Methodist Church.

"House-Warming" Tendered Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Black

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Black and family, who recently moved to their newly-built home on Taft street, were tendered a "house-warming" Saturday evening, by a number of their friends. The guests first presented them with many comic gifts and later with an occasional chair. The party was held in the basement and the evening was enjoyed playing games and dancing.

A lunch was served to: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Commare, Mr. and Mrs. William Mack, Mr. and Mrs. A. Queen, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brodie, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barton, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lippincott, Riverton, N. J.; Miss Frances Bartlett, Philadelphia.

Committee To Plan For July 4 Celebration

called together for a meeting on Wednesday evening, in the Municipal Building, at eight o'clock, daylight saving time.

Anthony Russo, chairman of the committee last year, has issued the call for the meeting and some notices have been mailed. "But in order that no one who was active last year might be overlooked, I would appreciate it if everyone interested would attend the meeting on Wednesday evening," says Mr. Russo.

There is a substantial balance remaining in the treasury from last year, but it will be necessary to raise additional funds. This, however, will have to be determined at the meeting on Wednesday evening.

Representatives of patriotic groups are urged to be present at the initial meeting.

There has been considerable discussion as to the nature of the program which should be followed this year. Several have suggested changes from the program of last year.

"Spoiled Girl" by LUCILLE MARSH JOHNSON

CHAPTER THIRTY

Gabrielle hardly glanced around the apartment. She felt tired because she never had been able to sleep well on trains. She wanted to look her best for Peter tonight, so she lay down on a couch, thinking sleepily that she'd explore the place a bit later.

Sleep didn't come right away, however, and she opened her eyes occasionally and let them play over the room. It was such an attractive room, lined as it was with white bookcases all around. There was a beautiful walnut piano in one corner of the room, and there were easy chairs with small tables and lamps everywhere; there were etchings which looked like originals from where she lay, and there were lovely white glazed pottery ashtrays everywhere.

She'd get up and examine those etchings later, she thought as she dozed off. They couldn't be originals though—where would Peter have gotten enough money for everything? And surely they didn't furnish apartments in such a fine fashion with books and all—no, not even in New York.

The chime of the clock on the mantle awakened her with a start nearly an hour later. Getting up she thought quickly that she must hurry if she were to be freshened up by the time Peter returned. She hadn't noticed just what time it was when they arrived, but Peter had said the broadcast was at six.

Going through the nearly dark hallway, she found the bathroom and washed her hands. Then she went into the bedroom, which she had passed a few minutes before, pushing the slightly ajar door wide. It was with a shock that left her almost stunned that she beheld an orange velvet dressing robe lying across the bed. Near the bed was a pair of small, gold kid mules, kicked off in a hurry undoubtedly, for they lay far apart.

Gabrielle raised startled eyes and saw a partially unpacked bag on an ottoman. Close by she beheld a closet door flung wide open, and it was filled with clothing; dresses and suits—Peter's suits!

Turning quickly, Gabrielle fairly flew back to the living room. She stopped here only long enough to pull on her hat, not even taking time to glance in a mirror. She snatched up her overnight bag. Surely, she thought, her mind coming out of the fog somewhat, Peter would be good enough to send the other one on to her.

Stepping out into the avenue of congested traffic, she finally succeeded in hailing a passing cab. When she was in it, she told the driver, in answer to his query: "Grand Central."

Where else would she go? Home! That was the place for Gabrielle Parsons. For the very first time she wished she had taken her old name back. Someone else was quite evidently Mrs. Peter Parsons now! Oh, how she hated her whoever she was!

She began to cool off and it was with a feeling of deep mortification that she remembered kissing Peter when he left. No wonder he had looked so startled. Oh, he was just being nice to her after all. But how did he dare—when he had a wife...

In a sudden frenzy of fright, she counted her money. She had purchased a ticket to New York only, not a round trip one. Her father had laughed, she remembered, thinking it a long time ago. Yes, he had laughed and said:

"Take enough to come back home if you don't like it there, Gaby. Your old dad will be glad to have you back if New York doesn't suit you!"

After counting her money she breathed a sigh of relief. There would be plenty, she saw; plenty and more.

In the station she purchased a ticket for Teunetella, then sat down in a deserted corner to wait. She had scarcely registered a thought when she had been informed that the next available train going straight through would be at nine o'clock. What did it matter? What did anything matter?

After a time, she began to feel weak and she was becoming tired of sitting there. Resolutely she put all thoughts of Peter and the apartment and the orange robe and the gold kid mules out of her mind. But persistently they came back to taunt her.

Suddenly, Gaby reached a decision. She had come to New York presumably to see and hear Peter's broadcast; well, she had her ticket, and there was still time to go, if she hurried.

She checked her bag, then found a cabman and directed him to the broadcasting station; thinking how deliciously happy she had been when she had left here with Peter, such a short while ago, she sighed.

There was quite a large audience she found upon her arrival, and she was hardly seated when everything became absolutely quiet. Then the Blue-Gay Boys appeared, dressed meticulously in midnight blue.

They were a handsome lot of young men, she thought; and Peter, taking his place at the huge grand piano, seemed the handsomest of all. She noticed that he wore a worried expression and continuously ran his long nervous fingers through his thick hair in a distraught manner.

Suddenly Gabrielle made a momentous decision. Peter might have a wife, or he might not, but he hadn't, after all, any reason not to have one if he cared to. Perhaps he had meant to tell her about the girl when he wasn't so rushed. . . . And, he was undoubtedly worried about her disappearance—yes, she'd do it!

On a page out of her shopping notebook she wrote him a note, and when the first half of the program was finished she called an usher and asked him to give it to Peter. There really didn't seem to be any reason for her ruining his evening for him, and perhaps his broadcast.

While the commercial was being given she was gratified to see it handed to him, noting with pleasure the light that came over his face. After this there was a definite difference in the music she was sure; it had a more pronounced lilt. Gabrielle, too, felt better somehow.

Later Peter was introduced, and a short history of his quick rise to success given. When he came to the central microphone his blue eyes were brilliant, his red lips were smiling, revealing his even white teeth; his figure was taut, youthful, virile. Gabrielle took a deep breath as he began speaking:

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen! May I take a moment to thank you for the many good wishes I have received this evening? I do appreciate them more than I can tell you. And now, I wish to dedicate my new ballad, Amber Eyes, to someone who is very dear to me—Gabrielle Snow Parsons, who is here in the studio tonight."

There was a short period of applause, and Gabrielle felt very thankful that no one knew her. She felt positively self-conscious!

When Peter had finished singing, the applause was deafening. Amber Eyes was undoubtedly a hit. . . .

Wed 60 Years Ago, Couple
Has A Reception Today

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hardman, of 3346 Friendship street, Philadelphia, are today receiving guests in Croydon in observance of their 60th wedding anniversary. The reception for the Philadelphians is being held at the home of Mrs. Catherine Richards, Croydon, Mrs. Richards being the mother of the couple's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles W. Hardman.

Throughout the day, relatives and friends have been paying visits to the bride and groom of 60 years ago, and extending congratulations and also best wishes for many more years of happy married life. Mr. Hardman is 84 years of age, and Mrs. Hardman is 85.

The couple were the parents of seven sons, two of whom are living, namely James R. Hardman, 258 W. Sparks street, Philadelphia; and Charles W. Hardman, of the Friendship street address with whom the elderly couple have resided for the past 10 years.

The Philadelphians also have three grandchildren, Eleanor Mercedes, Virginia and James R. Hardman, Jr., all children of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hardman.

For many years, Mr. Hardman was engaged in the wholesale grocery business, he operating out of Philadelphia. He retired from this business a number of years ago.

The wedding, performed on May 13, 1880, occurred in Philadelphia.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The man, woman or child who cannot thoroughly enjoy every minute of "Young Tom Edison," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre for an engagement of two days, is not human and never was young.

Here is a picture which a reviewer can recommend without fear of contradiction. It is a beautifully human story of a boy—of any generation and any walk of life—who triumphs against the stigma of being considered strange. It has everything—comedy, adventure, thrills, tears, human interest and family love.

RITZ THEATRE

"Castle On The Hudson," a tempestuous love story, starring John Garfield and Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien, will have its first local showing today at the Ritz Theatre. The supporting cast, headed by Burgess Meredith, includes Henry O'Neill, Jerome Cowan, Guinn Williams, John Lital and Margot Stevenson.

"Castle On The Hudson" is described by those who have previewed it in Hollywood as a memorable romance of powerful impact.

BRISTOL THEATRE

It's in the stars that "Sidewalks of London" is a hit!

Not that the Paramount picture which had its local opening last night at the Bristol Theatre lacks a good story, first-rate direction or Grade A production. It's merely that when two names such as Charles Laughton and Vivien Leigh get together on one screen, the moviegoer looks for acting thrills extraordinary. In "Sidewalks of London" he gets them!

Some Simple Framing Precautions

Walls and partition studs should not be less than sixteen inches on centers. They should be doubled around windows and doors and tripled at corners. Sheathing on outside walls should be applied at a forty-five degree angle. Diagonal sheathing is seven times stronger than horizontal sheathing.

Sub-flooring should also be laid diagonally and carried in between the studs and outside wall. Diagonal sub-flooring is strongest and also permits the finished floor to be laid in any direction. There should be a layer of moisture and dust-proof paper between sub and finished floor.

Headers are supports over openings. For all openings of three feet or less, two 2x4's on edge should be used. If the opening is wider than three feet the header should be in the form of a truss, as shown in this illustration.

Roof rafters should be anchored to the walls by spiking them to two-inch blocking between the rafters which has been spiked to the wall plates. This will furnish a good bond between the roof framing and the side walls... often a point of weakness.

Clemence Dane's dramatic, touching story of the "buskers," London's picturesque sidewalk entertainers, gives Laughton an ideal opportunity to show all his well-known talents.

EDGELY

Carl Leinheiser has been confined to his home by illness for the past few days.

Mrs. William Helnecke, spent Tuesday in Philadelphia visiting Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oeser.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nichols have purchased a new Chevrolet car.

Mrs. Thomas Lavaty, Virginia, spent a few days recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson.

Mrs. William Grace entertained the Edgely Card Club this week. Highest scorers were Mrs. George Bintliff, Sr., and Mrs. Harold Bergmann.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morrison, Philadelphia, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Lake.

A vocal duet by Thelma and Catherine Myers was much enjoyed, as well as an instrumental selection by Anne McCarthy, accompanied by her mother at the piano. Mrs. Leo McCarthy also favored with a vocal solo.

The most important part of the program for some of the Scouts was the awarding of badges. A tenderfoot pin was presented to Anna Mills by Dorothy Knox. Second class badges were awarded to Doris Hickey, Nancy Haas, Betty Jane Wunsch, Dorothy Hopkins, Ruth Reukauf, Mildred Laino, Joyce Good, by Miss Pederson.

A first-class badge, the highest rank in Girl Scouts, was awarded by Miss Hodge to Phyllis Bartoe. A silver stripe, representing five years' continuous service to the troop, was awarded to Anne McCarthy by Miss Main.

A beautiful bouquet was presented to Miss Dorothy Knox by Miss Main, a gift of appreciation from the troop. A goodnight circle with all singing "Slumber, Slumber" brought to a close a most enjoyable evening. The Scout benediction was repeated by all, and taps were sounded by Scout Doris Hickey.

Plans are being made for the troop to attend the Bucks County Girl Scout Rally at Forest Park, Chalfont, next Saturday; and a boat ride down the Delaware River to Philadelphia on Saturday, May 25th.

FARMERS VICTORS IN OPENING GAMES PLAYED AT HOME

Local Nine Defeats Philadelphia Irish Stars by Score of 10 to 1

Defiance Club of Camden Falls Victim to Landreth in Sunday Game

Saturday afternoon Landreth's Seeds opened the season at Landreth Ball Park here by defeating the Philadelphia Irish Stars in a very closely played game 10-1. Previous to the game the American Legion Cadet Corps put on a fine drill which was much appreciated.

Either the Irish Stars were very weak or the home boys were exceedingly strong. Kohler pitched a pretty good game of ball for the visitors but his support was terrible. Al Carey was on the mound for the locals and started in where he left off last fall by continuing his winning streak.

The features were the heavy hitting of Miksis, who had a double, Broderick, who had a double and triple and the fielding of Debokey.

Yesterday the Defiance Club, the 1939 champions of Camden, was Landreth's opponents, but these boys, although they apparently had a good club, were no match for the "Farmers," who beat them 11-2.

Howard Black was on the mound and only allowed the visitors one hit up to the sixth inning. The features of the game were the batting of Rockhill, Miksis and Debokey and the fielding of Lodge. Howard Black had the visitors literally "eating out of his hand." The locals hammered Frett, McFadden and Gillette for 14 blows and many of them for extra bases.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE OPENS SEASON TONIGHT

Organized for the second season and combined with the Bristol Twilight League, the Bristol Suburban League will open tonight with a game being scheduled on the Edgely field. In this contest, the King Supply team of Morrisville meets the Bristol Odd Fellows. Game is scheduled to begin promptly at 8:45 o'clock.

Ten teams comprise the Suburban circuit. Three of these, the Odd Fellows, Diamond and Rohm and Haas were members of the Twilight League of last season. King Supply is also a new club added to the loop while the remaining six: Tullytown, Crofton, Y. M. A. St. Luke's, Voltz-Texaco, Edgely and Cornwells were in the circuit of last season.

Although one game is scheduled for tonight, tomorrow night will see the remaining eight clubs in action with game played at the Rohm and Haas field, Crofton field, Cornwells and Tullytown fields.

President Paul Voltz has approved the following umpires and have assigned them to their games: Ray Pico, Eddie Roe, Joe Kervick, Felix Tomlinson and Vito Della. The following scores have also been approved: Carlo Juno, Thomas Juno, Louis Tomlinson, and Lanford Woolvin.

It is most likely that Vinders will do the hurling for King tonight with Nolski doing the catching. For the Oddies Milt Jones will be on the mound and Henry Morrell behind the plate.

BRISTOL A. A. DEFEATS EAST FALLS ITALIANS

Superb relief hurling by "Parrot" Dick and a timely hit by "Tim" Harrison gave the Bristol A. A. team its second victory of the season at East Falls yesterday afternoon, as they downed the East Falls Italians, 6-3, in a very interesting game.

When Al Stover, Northeast High boy, went bad in the sixth inning the East Falls team scored twice and then loaded the sacks with one out. Manager Mulholland sent out an SOS call for Relief hurler Dick.

Dick proved to be the right call for he easily retired the next two hitters and then set down the Italians for the next three frames without a semblance of a hit and during this term, he whiffed four batters.

HORN CAPTURES 50-MILE GRIND AT LANGHORNE TRACK

Los Angeles Speed King Wins Event Without Any Difficulty

NOT A PERSON HURT

Only One Mishap Occurs During The Entire Afternoon

LANGHORNE, May 13—Ted Horn, Los Angeles speed king, won the 50-mile feature event on the Speedway oval here yesterday afternoon before 25,000 speed devotees. The time was 33 minutes and 51.98 seconds. Horn drove a Riverside Offenhauser Special. Only a bad break, however, prevented Tony Williams, of Milwaukee, from making a clean sweep. After qualifying his Miller Special in 36.4, the fastest lap made in the trials, Tony went out in the first 10-mile heat and won it without any difficulty in 6:17.92.

Getting away nicely in the 50-mile feature, Willman fairly burned up the track as he roared around in close to record speed for 42 laps. So terrific was his pace that he lapped all of his competitors except Horn and was within 200 yards of lapping Ted when his motor went dead on the backstretch of the 42nd mile.

Thereafter it was all Horn, for in attempting to prevent Willman from lapping him, Ted cut out such a terrific pace that only careful driving was necessary to bring him in a winner.

After taking the lead, due to Willman's mishap, Horn had a full lap on Joe Chitwood, Indian pilot, who was running in second place with his Riverside Special.

The speed carnival, which opened the Langhorne season, was run off without drivers or spectators suffering scratch.

The only mishap of the afternoon came when Mike Little, went through the inside rail on the south turn. Mike's car will never be the same again, but the driver escaped with nothing more serious than a jol
